Summary

Chibiusa meets a 14-year-old girl who seems lost.

- A translation of La fille perdue by MiaQc

Chibiusa is walking around when she meets a 14-year-old girl. The girl has long brown hair, eyes of the same color and three black dots are tattooed on her temple. She wears a purple bracelet and she has a kind of white headband with a crystal on her neck. The girl seems lost because she looks everywhere. Chibiusa goes to talk to her.

"Hello?"

But since she speaks Japanese, the girl doesn't understand her. She answers Chibiusa in English, which complicates things.

"Um. How to communicate?" Chibiusa wonders aloud.

The brown-haired girl, on her side, has an idea. She talks to her purple bracelet and a male electronic voice talks to Chibiusa in Japanese.

"Hello. I'm Alana. What's your name?"

"Wow! I understand. I'm Chibiusa."

The girl talks to the bracelet again and he translates Chibiusa's words into English. So the two girls can talk to each other.

"Nice to meet you. This is PJ." Says Alana via her bracelet. "I'm lost. Where am I?"

"You are in Tokyo." Chibiusa replies.

"Tokyo?"

"Yep, in Japan."

"I don't know that. How far is it from Sydney?"

"Sydney? That's the city you're from."

"Yes, in a way."

"What country is it in?"

"Uh, Australia."

"How did you get to Japan then? By plane, boat?"

"I don't know. Ten minutes ago I was with my friend Jenny and then I got here."

"That's weird, but don't worry, my friends can help."

"That's great. Thanks."

Chibiusa brings Alana to Haruka and Michiru. The little girl knows that they can help Alana go back to Australia. After all, Haruka has her helicopter.
